

Cookie Policy

Draft for website publication | 25 October 2026 | webifyglobals@gmail.com

1. About this Cookie Policy

This policy explains cookies and similar technologies that may be used on the WebifyGlobals website. It should be read with our Privacy Policy. The categories below are illustrative; deployment-specific cookie names, providers, purposes and expiry periods require verification against the live site before publication.

2. What cookies are

Cookies are small files placed or accessed by a website through your browser. Similar technologies can include local storage, pixels and identifiers. Some technologies support basic operation; others, if enabled, measure site activity or remember preferences.

3. Essential and security technologies

Hosting, security and website features may use technically necessary cookies or storage to maintain sessions, deliver pages, balance traffic or prevent abuse. Whether any such cookies are actually set, and their retention, depends on the deployed implementation.

4. Preferences and functionality

If enabled, the website may store preferences such as selected display mode, accessibility settings or consent choices. Some preferences can be stored locally without a traditional browser cookie.

5. Analytics and performance

If WebifyGlobals enables analytics or performance monitoring, these tools may process website usage and device information or set cookies. We should identify the actual provider and its retention policy in the published version of this document. This draft does not assert that Google Analytics, advertising pixels or other named trackers are installed.

6. Third-party services

Following a link to Calendly or to Instagram, LinkedIn, X or WhatsApp takes you to an independent service. The third party may use its own cookies or tracking technologies under its own policy. A simple outbound link does not necessarily mean that service sets a cookie on the WebifyGlobals website itself.

7. Your cookie choices

You can review, block or delete cookies using your browser settings. Blocking necessary storage can affect site features. Where optional cookies requiring consent are implemented, WebifyGlobals should provide legally appropriate controls before setting them.

8. Updates and contact

We may update this policy as website features, vendors and applicable laws change. For questions about cookies or privacy, email webifyglobals@gmail.com. Business phone: +91 9993137839.

Publication check

Before publishing, check the production site and every embedded widget for actual cookies and storage; identify providers, cookie names, durations and legal purposes; and implement any required consent interface. Only then should this policy be considered an accurate description of the live deployment.
