

Terms and Conditions

Effective date: 25 October 2026 | Contact: webifyglobals@gmail.com

These Terms and Conditions govern access to the WebifyGlobals website and general enquiries about our services. They do not replace a signed proposal, statement of work or separate client agreement. If a signed agreement conflicts with these website terms regarding a paid engagement, the signed agreement governs that engagement.

1. About WebifyGlobals

WebifyGlobals offers digital and technology services that may include branding and identity, website development, AI agents and automation, custom software, and SEO or digital growth services. Actual services, deliverables, milestones and prices are defined in an individual quotation or written agreement.

2. Website use

You may browse this website and contact us for lawful business purposes. You agree not to misuse the site, disrupt its operation, attempt unauthorised access, introduce malicious code, scrape in breach of applicable law or infringe the rights of others.

Website descriptions, demonstrations, example projects, timelines and features are provided for general information and may change without notice.

3. Enquiries, proposals and project acceptance

An enquiry, meeting booking or initial discussion does not itself create a service contract. Projects begin only after the parties agree in writing on the applicable scope, commercial terms, deliverables and required approvals.

Additional requests or material changes to agreed scope may require a revised estimate, delivery schedule or change order.

4. Fees, payment and taxes

Project fees, invoicing milestones, payment deadlines, applicable taxes, reimbursable expenses and any cancellation or refund provisions will be stated in the relevant accepted proposal, invoice or contract.

Unless expressly stated in writing, no website text should be interpreted as a binding price offer or a guarantee of refunds.

5. Client responsibilities

Clients are responsible for providing timely and lawful materials, accurate specifications, access credentials through secure channels, approvals, and any licences or permissions needed for third-party content and systems.

Delays in information, reviews, approvals or external dependencies may affect delivery schedules.

6. Intellectual property

WebifyGlobals and its licensors retain ownership of pre-existing tools, methods, code, templates, brands and website content. Clients retain ownership of content and materials they lawfully supply.

Ownership and licensing of project-specific deliverables, source code and intellectual property are determined by the applicable written client agreement, including any conditions tied to full payment. Third-party software and media remain subject to their respective licences.

You may not copy, redistribute or commercially exploit this website content without the relevant rights or written permission.

7. AI and automation services

AI-generated outputs and automated workflows can be inaccurate, incomplete or unsuitable for critical decisions. Customers should provide appropriate human review, testing, permissions and oversight before deploying such outputs or automations.

Any external AI models, APIs, messaging platforms and other integrations may carry separate terms, costs, quotas and usage restrictions, which will be addressed in the relevant project scope.

8. Third-party links and integrations

The website may link to Calendly, social networks and other independent services. We are not responsible for the independent content, availability or privacy practices of those providers. Use of third-party products may be governed by their own terms.

9. Availability and disclaimers

We aim to maintain a useful website but do not promise uninterrupted access, error-free operation or continuous availability. Website content is provided for general information on an "as available" basis, subject to rights that cannot legally be excluded.

We do not guarantee particular rankings, traffic, sales, revenue, outcomes or compatibility unless a specific written agreement expressly states a measurable obligation.

10. Liability

To the extent permitted by applicable law, WebifyGlobals is not responsible for indirect or consequential losses arising solely from use of this informational website. Nothing in these terms excludes liability or consumer rights that cannot lawfully be excluded.

Any project-specific allocation or cap on liability will be governed by the separate written client agreement, subject to applicable law.

11. Confidentiality and data protection

Project confidentiality, processing of client data, security requirements, use of customer systems and disclosure permissions should be addressed in the relevant service agreement or data-processing terms, where needed.

Personal information collected through the website is handled as described in the WebifyGlobals Privacy Policy.

12. Changes and governing law

We may update these website terms by posting an updated effective date. Continued website use after publication is subject to applicable law.

These website terms are governed by the laws of India. Any dispute-resolution procedure or specific jurisdiction agreed for paid client work will be governed by the relevant written contract and applicable law.
